Volume 28 - September 2015

Farmers Markets have grown in popularity in recent years both because of the excellent opportunity to purchase local goods & produce and as a meeting place for communities to interact in a friendly, relaxed atmosphere. In Tucson many of the most popular farmers markets are run by Heirloom. Currently Heirloom Farmers Markets operates three locations throughout the greater Tucson area. Friday they're set up at Trail Dust Town on the east side, Saturday at Steam Pump Ranch in Oro Valley, and Sunday at the Rillito Park Food Pavilion in central Tucson. Each of these locations is open from 9:00am - 1:00pm beginning this weekend.

Bring a sturdy canvas shopping bag or purchase one at the market. You'll find the freshest, organic produce and often be able to sample the goods before buying. Cash is the preferred payment but some vendors do accept credit cards. For more information visit: www.heirloomfm.org.

HOUSEHOLD TIPS - ORGANIZE!

Organization is a key ingredient to a well cared for household. Not only does it create more space, but it often allows for easier cleaning and motivates a household to stay engaged in keeping the house tidy. One nice organizational tool that has made the rounds on Pinterest & Facebook is the Glideware Pull-out Cabinet Organizer seen to the left. Clearly this is a great way to store the often bulky pots and pans that can take up so much kitchen cabinet space.

Locally many people were excited for the arrival of the Container Store that recently opened at the Tucson Mall this summer. This store specializes in offering organizational solutions for all the rooms of your home. With over 21,000 square feet of products, the store can take quite a while to browse through but it's well worth it. Decluttering rooms not only makes them more attractive and functional, but also can bring a sense of calmness that spills over into other aspects of your family's life. Having an organized household will increase productivity and make it more likely to maintain that appearance when each item has a set place to be stored away.
