Volume 48 - February 2016

Tucson's economy received another boost last month when Pima County approved a bond sale for the development of what's being called Spaceport Tucson. The deal was put together to keep the space balloon company World View Enterprises in Tucson. While the county will own the facility, World View will operate it and build a new headquarters next door as the anchor tenant of the County Aerospace Defense and Technology Business and Research Park. Plans are underway to have it operational by the end of the year. World View is currently developing a balloon-based system that will transport six passengers on a gentle 5 - 6 hour journey up to an altitude of 100,000 feet, allowing them to see the curvature of the earth & the blackness of space. Tickets are being sold for $75,000 each.
