Volume 77 - July 2018

Those who know Tucson well appreciate the wide variety of experiences it offers. That holds true with housing as well. Recently we've seen buyers looking at all types of different properties that have vastly different lifestyle components. This has ranged from townhomes in the Foothills, to urban downtown properties, and remote ranch style estates. Among this month's featured homes are two properties that demonstrate these polar opposite, yet equally appealing options. The first is a new construction home located near the University of Arizona and the renowned Arizona Inn, built in a Santa Barbara style. The second is in the uniquely sited X9 Ranch where all properties are over 30 acres. That specific home is nicknamed the "Wolf House" for having once been owned by Michael Blake, the Dances With Wolves writer. The property backs to Saguaro National Park East. Whether it's privacy or an urban lifestyle, Tucson can deliver!
